COMMERCIAL IMPORT CLEARANCE REQUIREMENTS

Clearance of commercial import consignments can be arranged by an appointed Customs broker (agent) or by the owner. Private importers who wish to clear their own goods should contact the nearest New Zealand Customs Service office for advice on requirements and operating hours.

WHY DO I NEED A CUSTOMS CLEARANCE FOR IMPORTED GOODS?
All imported goods arriving in New Zealand are required by law to be cleared through the New Zealand Customs Service. Imported goods are subject to security requirements and the payment of import duty and GST charges. Customs undertakes security screening and collects revenue charges on behalf of the New Zealand Government.

WHAT IS A CUSTOMS CLEARANCE?
A Customs import clearance refers to the procedure where the importer of the goods is required to lodge an electronic declaration (import entry) covering the particulars of their imported goods, the payment of any revenue charges due and subsequent formal release of those goods by Customs.

WHAT IS THE PROCEDURE FOR CLEARING COMMERCIAL IMPORT CONSIGNMENTS?
An electronic entry must be lodged, either over the internet at www.customs.govt.nz, or using EDI (Electronic Data Interchange) software. In some cases, importers may also be asked to provide additional information such as:

- an airway bill or bill of lading
- invoices
- other documents, such as packing lists, or insurance certificates.

Importers may also need to contact shipping companies, airlines or freight forwarders for advice on their requirements, operating hours and/or location of the goods.

HOW DO I LODGE A CUSTOMS IMPORT ENTRY?
Import entries may be lodged over the Internet or via EDI. Many importers use their freight forwarder or a Customs broker to lodge import clearances on their behalf, as they generally already have EDI software, and are familiar with Customs legal requirements.

Using EDI
EDI users are required to:

- develop or purchase EDI software which contains features necessary to transmit clearance messages and receive responses
- test proper functionality with Customs prior to use
- pay for the EDI link and associated messaging costs.

Thus EDI is generally more suitable for higher-frequency users. For further information on EDI requirements, refer to the Customs website www.customs.govt.nz.

Clearance via the internet
The Trade Single Window (TSW) online website (www.tsw.govt.nz) is designed for regular importers who have sufficient knowledge of Customs requirements to clear their own imports with Customs.

If you are unfamiliar with how to determine the tariff classification, value or permit requirements for the goods you import, Customs suggests you engage your freight forwarder or a Customs broker to lodge import clearances on your behalf. Alternatively, contact the Customs Brokers and Freight Forwarders Federation (CBAFF) on 09 419 0042 or email freightstrain@clearhelf.org.nz to enquire about training programmes you can attend to equip yourself to lodge your own entries.

Users of the TSW website require access to the Internet but do not need any special software. The online declarations website is generally more suitable for lower-volume users.

For information about internet clearances, refer to the Customs website www.customs.govt.nz or www.tsw.govt.nz.
